Hi! Yes so I have to docket the motion to stay and the notice of appeal with you. Then I have 30 days to file my appeal with the single justice.

If there is any way, when it is available if you could get me the following documents:

- 1) Docket with the allowed motion to stay docketed on it and the notice of appeal
- 2) Signed and endorsed/allowed motion to stay (or denied, if it is denied)

I'll be reaching out to you next week for those but I thought I'd put it on your radar.

Thanks

Beth

Hi Elizabeth, I believe you need to apply to a single justice of the Supreme Judicial Court for leave to appeal the order on the motion to suppress. Is that something you are taking care of?

Thanks!

Cameron
